ONE MORE KILLED AND SIX INJURED IN RIOTS STILL RAGING IN CHICAGO

Chicago, July 30.—One more dead and six injured were added to the toll of four days of race rioting early today.

Ira Henry, a negro, was shot and killed by a police officer after Henry had shot and wounded Policeman Walter Sullivan. Sullivan was seriously wounded and may die.

The police quickly broke up the early attempt at mob rioting today when they dispersed a throng that gathered at State and 51st streets. Several persons were injured.

Snipers lying in ambush fired on a taxicab carrying six policemen and two of the officers were wounded.

Chicago, July 30.—Guerrilla warfare between whites and negroes has today for the most part replaced the mob rioting that has held sway over large areas since Sunday and brought the city many times to the verge of martial law. It is still possible that troops may be called upon to take over the policing of the city, although the regular police department claims to be getting the situation slowly in hand.

Establishment of zones, with a stated number of police officials assigned to each, has, the police declared, broken up the mobs of whites and blacks that caused Monday's and Tuesday's reign of terror.

Fighting between the whites and blacks has by no means been checked, however, and sporadic disturbances still are frequent, not only in the negro district, but in the business section and in residential districts of the north and west side.

Careful checking up of casualties resulting from the three days of rioting has reduced somewhat earlier estimates of the dead and wounded.

The coroner's official list today places the number of dead at 26, including 11 white and 15 negroes. The wounded, it is estimated, number more than 300.

A coroner's inquest of bodies of the victims of the riots is to be held as soon as the necessary steps can be taken and probably will get under way today. The grand jury, which is now in session, will undertake an exhaustive probe of the situation under the direction of State's Attorney Macley Hoyne.

Military and civil authorities have wavered several times on the verge of calling out the 4,500 militiamen, who are being held in armories completely armed and ready for instant service.

Adjutant General Dickson, Governor Frank O. Lowden and Mayor Thompson have held frequent conferences, and, although admitting that the situation is extremely bad, have thus far refrained from calling out the guardsmen. It is believed, however, that should rioting on the scale of that of Monday night and Tuesday be renewed the soldiers will be called out before daylight.

Between 2 o'clock yesterday and this morning but one man is known to have been killed. He was a young negro who was attacked in a west side neighborhood several miles from the black belt, stabbed and shot 16 times and his body saturated with gasoline and set afire.

Another incident that featured the rioting during the night was an attack upon Miss Josephine McDonald and Miss Mamie Bristol by a mob of negroes. When the girls fled from the mob shots were fired and both were wounded.

Patrolman Thomas Daly and Police Sergeant George Chaff were shot and painfully wounded during the night while attempting to quell riots.

Calls for the police came from widely scattered districts with almost unending frequency during the night. Mobs of negroes and whites swarmed through the streets and fighting flared up in hundreds of localities. Every available police reserve was kept on duty and was kept busy, while, with the street car system paralyzed by the strike, vehicles of every description were pressed into service to transport policemen. Many arrests were made and police stations throughout the city are rapidly filling up with prisoners.

Guards are keeping close watch today upon the county jail, where negro prisoners became unmanageable yesterday and staged a serious uprising.

Although there has been little further trouble in the business district following outbreaks yesterday, the police are keeping close watch in the downtown section and are taking every possible precaution to prevent mobs forming. Negroes, as far as possible, are being told to remain away from the downtown district. Under the impression that negroes were employed in the place, several hundred whites attempted to force an entrance to the Sherman Hotel, but were prevented by police and special officers.

Instead of forming mobs, negroes in the black belt today are hiding in houses and alleys, maintaining a guerrilla warfare, shooting at whites whenever they appear.

On the west side where a few negroes reside but where whites predominate, the colored population has appealed for protection, fearing attacks by white men. Even on the aristocratic north side where many negroes are employed as servants in the houses of the wealthy, crowds of white men have congregated and threatened the negroes.

Search of many houses, including those occupied by negroes and the homes of white men, has revealed barricades and quantities of ammunition. Those on the south side are reported to have obtained army rifles of the Springfield type and an investigation of how the blacks got them is being made.

The riots have had their effect on the industrial life of the city and many industries employing negroes have been compelled to close or curtail their operations, as the blacks have not appeared for work.

City play grounds where both white and black children have played, have been ordered closed. The stock yards, particularly, have been affected, as many negroes are employed there, and it is the stock yards district that has been the scene of the most violent fighting.

JAPAN WILL RESTORE KIAO CHOW TO CHINA, SAYS JAP OFFICIAL

A view of the disputed Shantung district, showing a five-story pagoda at Tsing Tao.

Among recent developments in the discussion over the peace conference's decision in awarding Shantung to Japan, is the statement of Counselor Debuchi of the Japanese embassy at Washington. Expressing his personal opinion, he said he believed Japan has finally decided to restore to China her sovereignty over the leased territory of Kiao Chow. The territory was leased to Germany by China under pressure in 1908 for ninety-nine years. China repudiated the lease on her entrance into the war.

GERMAN PROPAGANDA MAY BE FACTOR IN RACE RIOTS IN U. S.

Washington, July 30.—German propaganda may be an important underlying factor of the race riots in various parts of the country, Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior declared today.

The secretary pointed to the known fact that German agents were active during the war in trying to stir up race hatred in thickly populated negro sections of large cities, adding that he thought their activities in this direction had not ceased with the signing of the peace treaty. The recent riots in Washington and now in Chicago might be traced directly to their sinister work, he believed.

"The situation must be handled by the state and governmental authorities," he said. "The police, if unable to handle the situation, should have prompt assistance from the military."

In reply to a question as to what the government could do to eliminate race hatred, Secretary Lane said:

"Give us more schools like the Tuskegee and Hampton institutes. I do not believe that one of the blacks connected with these riots were graduates of these schools. These colored men and women are taught the proper conception of their duty and relation towards society and this teaching develops what properly constitutes a 'morale.'"

TELEGRAPH TOLLS WILL REVERT TO PRE-WAR BASIS

Columbus, O., July 30.—For thirty days at least, telegraph tolls in Ohio will revert to the pre-war schedule, when the telephone and telegraph wires revert back to their private owners tomorrow. The state utilities commission refuses to allow the Western Union Telegraph Company to file a one day schedule putting into effect the Burleson rates, the state utility law requiring a 30 day notice in the change of schedules.

This does not affect telephone rates, the law giving them back to their owners providing that the Burleson rates be in effect for four months.

The Western Union will file the Burleson schedule to become effective in 30 days and the commission will hear the company's argument as to the reasonableness of the rates.

TWO KILLED WHEN STEERING GEAR BREAKS

Albany, N. Y., July 30.—Dr. Fred C. Myers, of Albany and Dr. William T. Sweeney, of Saratoga Springs, were instantly killed here early today when the steering gear of their automobile broke and the machine plunged on the sidewalk and into a tree. John Murphy, of Albany, the only other occupant of the car, is in the hospital seriously injured internally.

BRITISH SOLDIERS TO LEAVE RUSSIA SOON

London, July 3.—Many newspapers today hailed as favorable news the announcement of War Secretary Colonel Winston Churchill in the house of commons that all British soldiers will be out of Russia in a few months.

"Even with the government undertaking to do the sensible thing, we must watch carefully the gambols of Colonel Winston Churchill, for there is too much of the 'war lord' about him," said the Daily Express.

The Daily News took the attitude that it is "better to feed Russia than to fight her."

THEY HAVEN'T IN XENIA

Ohio State Journal.
The profiteers appear to have their hooks on practically everything, with the exception of the water that we drink and the air that we breathe. How does it happen that they have overlooked these two prime necessities?

COST OF LIVING IS INTOLERABLE IN STATE OF OHIO

Columbus, O., July 30.—Absence of a state law governing the prices dealers in foodstuffs may charge, unless conspiracy is proven, may result in the calling of a special session of the Ohio legislature to provide additional legislation to aid in the probe to be made generally throughout the state, it is said today. Members of the legislature have signified their willingness to aid the probe in every way possible and if it is decided at the meeting of prosecuting attorneys today that the laws are inadequate, it appears likely that the special session will be urged.

Columbus, O., July 30.—That food prices and conditions are intolerable and that public sentiment in all parts of the state demands immediate and drastic action in dealing with alleged food waste and profiteering is the word brought to Columbus today by prosecuting attorneys from every section of Ohio, who are here to attend a meeting with Attorney General Price and his staff in the chamber of the house of representatives this afternoon. Some of the prosecutors say the sentiment in their communities is such that unless the situation is relieved, they fear outbreaks.

The coming of the prosecutors has been preceded by a flood of letters to Attorney General Price from the citizenry of the state, urging immediate action.

From Youngstown Price received a letter from a man who says that unless something is done immediately he fears revolution, which will not "confine itself to profiteers, but include the innocent with the guilty."

From another large city in the state Price has received an offer from a prominent detective agency, offering its services to the state free of charge. "We believe all well meaning citizens of the state should give all the aid possible," the letter says.

A good many of the prosecutors are skeptical as to reducing prices, unless conspiracy can be proven, as there is no law in Ohio governing prices. Available legal machinery will be discussed at this afternoon's meeting.

INVESTIGATE DEATH OF MOTHER AND HER SEVEN CHILDREN

Nelsonville, Ohio, July 30.—The coroner today was investigating the tragic death of Mrs. Tony Stravisar and her seven children at Kimberly.

The mother and the children were found dead in their little cabin home when officers went to take the children to the county home.

The mother had tied the children to a bed, sprinkled them with coal oil and set fire to the cabin. The flames did not destroy the cabin, but all of the occupants were either burned to death or asphyxiated.

MAN STABBED TO HIDE FACT THAT HE HAD BEEN POISONED

Cleveland, Ohio, July 30.—The theory that the stabbing of Daniel Kaber was done to prevent discovery of the fact that he had been poisoned occupied police investigating the death of the Lakewood publisher today.

Dr. Byrne, coroner, declared there was a possibility that the dying man may have been stabbed in the hope that the stabbing would remove traces of the poisoning.

Coroner Byrne today declined to indicate when the inquest would be reopened, but said that it undoubtedly would be as soon as evidence at hand justified.

WAGE INCREASES ASKED BY 100,000 RAILWAY EMPLOYEES

Chicago, July 30.—Wage increases have been asked by 100,000 railroad trainmen, shop mechanics and track workers employed on rail lines of the middle west it became known here today.

The trainmen are asking a minimum wage of $150 per month with time and a half for overtime and are asking an 8 hour day. Shop mechanics want an increase from 62 to 85 cents an hour and the track men also want an advance in hourly pay.

Railway officials assert that the granting of the demands of the men will add several million dollars annually to the operating expenses of the lines.

HAYS MAY NOT BE CANDIDATE FOR INDIANA GOVERNOR

Indianapolis, Ind., July 30.—Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, may not announce his candidacy for governor of Indiana at the meeting of the state Republican Editorial Association at Magnesia Springs Friday.

Friends say that the Republican chairman will not make such an announcement and in some usually well informed circles it is flatly declared that he will not be a candidate.

Meanwhile Chairman Hays, who has never said he would announce his candidacy, is characteristically non-committal.

GERMAN KAMERUN CEDED TO FRANCE

Paris, July 30.—Viscount Milner, British colonial secretary has signed an agreement at London ceding to France the whole of the German Kamerun in South Africa except a strip adjoining Nigeria which will go to England, the Petit Journal stated today. The port of Duala and most of Togoland, including Lome, will go to France, it was said.

NOT WHEEL TURNING OVER ANY TRACK IN CITY OF CHICAGO

Chicago, July 30.—With the arrival here today of William D. Mahon, international president of the street car men union, the first steps toward settlement of Chicago's street car strike will, it is expected, be taken. Mahon is scheduled to confer with local strike leaders and may also meet with Governor Lowden and members of the state public utilities commission.

The striking car men and officials of the traction companies are showing a "fight it out" spirit and neither side has shown any evidence of an intent to compromise.

Not a wheel has turned over any track of the city's electric transportation system since 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. Steam roads, taxicab lines, private autos, trucks and every other available form of conveyance are being used to transport Chicago's millions of workers. Although the strike has badly crippled the business life of the city in many ways, all essential industries have been able to continue operation.

The ranks of the strikers were swelled by 3,000 men today when employees of the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago interurban road joined in the strike.

CONGRESS WILL NOT INTERFERE IN THE MEXICAN SITUATION

Washington, July 30.—President Wilson and the state department are not to be interfered with further by congress this time in the handling of Mexican problems.

The house rules committee had decided today to lay aside until September its present probe into the need for a new and complete investigation of the Mexican situation by the house foreign affairs committee or by some special committee of the house. Chairman Campbell today notified witnesses not yet heard by the committee that they would be excused until after the proposed recess of the house ending September 9th.

ALL FORMER SALOONS ARE BEING WATCHED

Cleveland, Ohio, July 30.—Dry workers were conducting watch on every former saloon in Cuyahoga county, today.

This action followed charges that officials were not enforcing the dry laws and decision of the Dry Maintenance League to take matters in their own hands.

According to Secretary Southwell, the league, through its members, will gather evidence and will prosecute alleged violations of the prohibition statutes.

UNITED STATES JEWISH DELEGATES TO PEACE CONGRESS BACK.

LOUIS MARSHALL and DR. CYRUS ADLER, who went abroad last March to see that the Jews secured their rights at the Peace Conference returned home recently aboard the liner Touraine. During their stay abroad they traveled over most of Europe. Mr. Marshall upon his return declared that the parsons in Poland and the Ukraine have been "the worst in the history of the world." Thousands of men, women, and children have been killed, he declared, in the organized system of looting and pillaging. Mr. Marshall is a member of the law firm of Guggenheim, Untermyer and Marshall, of New York. Dr. Adler is president of the Dropsie College, Philadelphia, and acting president of the Jewish Theological Seminary of New York.

ROUND ROBIN SIGNERS TO MEET WILSON

Washington, July 30.—It will be with an "open mind" as to anything President Wilson may have to say to him relative to the treaty of Versailles that Senator Harry S. New, old Guard Republican, of Indiana, will go to the White House tomorrow.

In stating this today New, a member of the senate foreign relations committee, said that he "was prepared to listen respectfully and earnestly to the president."

"I welcome an opportunity to discuss the treaty with the president," New added. "There is much about the treaty which I frankly admit I do not know. I shall be glad if the president can enlighten me."

President Wilson was to discuss the treaty today with Senators Harding of Ohio; William P. Dillingham of Vermont; Bert M. Fernald, of Maine, and Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin. In addition to Senator New, the president invited Senator Henry W. Keyes, of New Jersey and James E. Watson of Indiana, to call on him tomorrow.

All seven of the senators named not only signed the round robin, but they are all reported to be in favor of the senate adopting reservations to the treaty.

With the senate adjourned until tomorrow, when speech making on the treaty was to be renewed, interest at the capitol was directed toward the reception of the Republican senators by the president today.

Preparations were under way for the open or public hearings on the treaty the foreign relations committee was to begin tomorrow.

When the senate concludes tomorrow's session it probably will adjourn over the week end to meet again on Monday to again consider the Colombian treaty in open session.

TURKS THREATEN TO MASSACRE ARMENIANS IF BRITISH LEAVE

Paris, July 30.—Major Green, representative of Herbert Hoover, in Armenia, telegraphed to the American officials today that the Turks are threatening a great massacre in the event the British troops withdraw from Asia Minor and that the country is in a panic.

It is understood by the American authorities that the withdrawal of the British is virtually certain, leaving Armenia at the mercy of the Turks.

The United States, it was declared by American officials, must make up her mind about accepting a mandatory for Armenia at once to prevent the slaughter of thousands of innocents.

The American delegates may come to a compromise on the disposition of Thrace if the peace conference agrees to include western Thrace and Constantinople under one mandate, which now seems probable.

(Major Green was sent into Armenia by the inter-allied food relief commission, of which Herbert Hoover is the head, to give succor to the starving population.)

REDUCTION OF PRICE OF WHEAT ADVOCATED BY GOVERNOR COX

Columbus, O., July 30—Reduction of the price of wheat and a change in the Ohio constitution, if necessary, were advocated by Governor Cox while Attorney General Price predicted consideration of the proposal of state control of the food supply and favored a nation wide probe of the high cost of living in speeches here this afternoon during a conference of the prosecuting attorneys of Ohio. The conference was called by Attorney General Price, at the request of Governor Cox, in order that the representatives of the various counties of this state might benefit through an expression of views, especially on the part of those county prosecutors who, for days past, have been dealing with the food and fuel situation in their respective communities.

"The objective in your labors must be the facts which touch the whole food situation," declared Governor Cox. "If the conditions are as we believe them to be, it will be a contest between you and certain elements of evil genius, but if you will carefully diagnose the situation about you and make your effort a sustained one, carrying with it the resolution to play no favorites, you will be enabled to give to the state an understanding of just what circumstances have brought about the present crisis.

"If we find that in the commercial relations between men the lust for gain is satisfied by artfully created privilege, then the common law must be invoked to bring it to an end. If the law is insufficient, the quicker we know it the better. If we do not possess the constitutional right to pass the necessary legislation, then the facility is open to change the constitution of this state. That process is the very essence of evolution. It stands out as the direct opposite of revolution, and it is the surest guarantee of orderly government."

"While we have no disposition to enter the problems that are purely national," said Governor Cox, "we are confronted hourly with the obvious fact that, as the price of steel is the vital factor in industrial prices, wheat exercises the same dominance in the cost of food stuffs.

"In closing up the fiscal accounts of the war, the government will be compelled to salvage machinery and plants amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars. It is the short cut of common sense, and will yield an ultimate economy.

BAKER ORDERED TO SELL SURPLUS FOOD HELD BY THE ARMY

Washington, July 30—After an all-day wrangle the House last night adopted a resolution, reported out by the War Investigation Committee, requesting Secretary Baker to place on sale without delay surplus food products held by the War Department and valued at $120,000,000.

The vote on the resolution was 266 to 144 and was taken after the House had rejected, 160 to 114, a substitute resolution offered by Democratic members of the committee providing that the Secretary be requested to put on the market such part of the surplus as is capable of being distributed and sold, and providing for sales organization at Government expense.

With this substitute out of the way the House adopted, 152 to 136, an amendment by Representative C. M. Kelly, Pennsylvania Republican, directing that the distribution be through the parcel post. A point of order against this amendment by Chairman W. J. Graham, of the War Investigation Committee, in charge of the legislation, was overruled.

The Chairman was hostile to the amendment, but it seemed to meet popular favor on the Democratic side. When the vote was announced the Democrats applauded, some of them jeering the opposition, because of its failure to put the resolution through without amendment.

After having fought all day and having failed to rally votes sufficient for their substitute, presented as a part of the minority report, the Democrats supported the selling plan, and it was adopted, by roll call with a chorus of ayes.

STAGE SMALL RIOT

Cleveland, O., July 30—Arrival of 300 strike breakers at the plant of the Central Furnace Company was the signal for the staging of a small riot today. Striking workmen on picket duty used stones and clubs and in the general melee several shots were fired but no one injured. Police reserves quickly dispersed the crowd. There was one arrest.

Volcanoes in Britain.

The two great centers of earthquake activity in the British Isles are Cornish, in Perthshire, and Mersea Island, in the mouth of the Blackwater, on the Essex coast. In both these localities earthquakes are frequent, and earthquakes are usually a sign of volcanic activity. Highly unpleasant as it would be, geologists would be no more surprised at the resurrection of one of the British volcanoes than they have been at the rebirth of Mount Elburz.

SERGEANT MAJOR W. J. SMITH BACK IN U. S.

Sergeant Major William J. Smith has arrived in this country and is in a hospital at Camp Merril, N. J., according to information contained in a letter which has been received by his parents. Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Smith. The letter was written immediately after his arrival and given to a friend to mail special delivery. Evidently the person asked to mail the letter did not do so at once, as it was five days after it was written that it was received. Sergeant Smith, who has not recovered from the effects of a surgical operation he underwent in Germany was examined upon his arrival at the hospital and ordered to bed at once, but he thought that to stay there would be very brief.

How You May Reduce Your Weight

Overstuffedness is a very unbecoming condition, especially in the present, when slender figures are so popular, and every reader of this paper who has a tendency to put on weight will be glad to know of a new, simple home treatment that is remarkably efficient and inexpensive.

If you happen to be one of those whose weight is more than it should be, don't try to reduce by starving yourself; eat all you want, but take after each meal and at least five grains of Phynola which you can secure at any drug store.

Phynola is designed to increase the oxygen carrying power of the blood and dissolves fatty tissue, in many cases at the rate of a pound a day. It is pleasant to take and gives remarkable results quickly and easily. Sayre & Hemphill can supply you. adv

Bad Results From Taking Substitutes For Nuxated Iron

Startling Case Cited—Physician Warns Public and Says Ordinary Metallic Iron Preparations Cannot Possibly Give The Same STRENGTH, POWER AND ENDURANCE AS Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron.

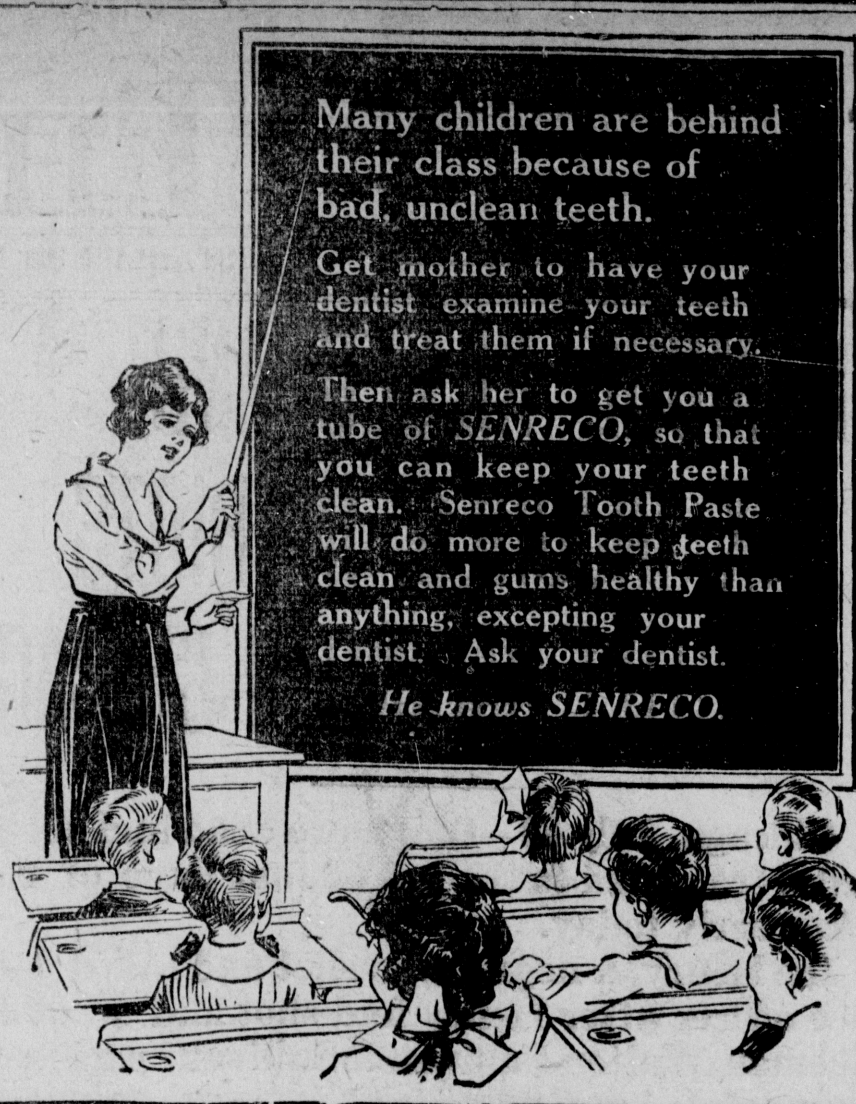

The tremendous success of Nuxated Iron as a ton, strength and blood-builder, being estimated that over three million people annually are now using it, has led to the offering of numerous substitutes and imitations. Investigation shows that many of these instead of being organic iron may be nothing more than a metallic iron compound which may in some instances produce more harm than good. Typical among the cases reported is one of a woman who has threatened to sue for damages the druggist who sold her something purporting to be the genuine Nuxated Iron but which, while similar in name, package and appearance was nothing more than a spurious article, imitating the real. This woman claims that instead of obtaining increased strength and improved health as she had with the true Nuxated Iron, she was seriously upset and in fact became ill as a result of using the substitute.

Such instances as these have led physicians mentioned below to emphasize that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting substitutes for Nuxated Iron. Those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder should go to their family doctors and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and present this to their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then they should be sure to look on the label and see that the words Nuxated Iron are printed thereon.

There are thousands of people taking iron who do not distinguish between organic iron and metallic iron and such persons often fail to obtain the vital energy, strength and endurance which they seek simply because they have taken the wrong form of iron. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength and see how much you have gained.

MANUFACTURERS NOTE: The widespread publication of the above information has been requested by the James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Department) New York and the Westchester County Hospital, Dr. Ferdinand Ring, New York Physician and Medical Author; Dr. George H. Baker, formerly Physician and Surgeon, Monmouth Memorial Hospital of New Jersey; Dr. H. B. Vail, formerly Physician in the Baltimore Hospital and a Medical Examiner and others so that the public may be informed on this subject and protected from the use of metallic iron under the deception that it is Nuxated Iron or at least something as good as Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the odorless organic iron products it is easily identified, does not liquefy the teeth, leaves them black nor gives the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

Sold in this city in John's drug store and all other druggists.

"IT WAS HEAVENLY," SAYS BRIDE IN UNIQUE WEDDING IN SKY

Commander Archie Miller of Hazelhurst field congratulating first couple married in airplane by wireless telephone. Left to right: Chaplain Alexander Wouter, Lieut. George Burgess, the groom; Miss Milly K. Schaefer, the bride; Miss Doris Schob, bridesmaid, and Commander Miller. Behind Burgess is the best man.

"It was heavenly," says the bride, describing the first marriage ever conducted under similar conditions. It took place recently over Hazelhurst field during the New York police field day. Lieut.

George Burgess was the groom and Miss Milly K. Schaefer the bride. They went up in one airplane. The chaplain ascended in a second plane. While the planes soared a mile above the ground the ceremony was conducted by wireless. The bridesmaid, on the ground below, heard the words by wireless phone, too. The best man piloted the chaplain's plane during the wedding.

COX, HARDING, GLENN AND FESS TO BE CHIEF SPEAKERS AT VETERANS PICNIC

If present arrangements and plans have anything to do with the outcome of the picnic to be held by the American World War Veterans and which is being arranged by the Dayton Post, at Kilkare Park next Saturday, the event should be a "hummer" and one that will long live in the memory of the ex-soldiers and sailors and their friends who expect to attend.

According to latest information received from Chairman Phillips of the Dayton Post, who has charge of the arrangements, everyone in Ohio has been invited to attend the event and there will be sufficient going on at the park to serve as an attraction. Not only soldiers and sailors but their friends are invited and it is planned to make the day the biggest event that has ever been held at popular Kilkare.

Among the speakers at the big event will be Congressman S. D. Fess, of this district, who will address the crowds at the park at ten o'clock Saturday morning as he has to catch a train at 11:30 o'clock. It is particularly urged that a large number of people be on hand to greet our Congressman at that time and it is assured that his message will be an interesting one. Congressman Fess is especially favored by the ex-service men as he is a champion of their cause and takes a particular interest in the boys who served their country during the time of peril.

The other speakers at the occasion will be none the less brilliant or prominent. Governor James M. Cox has signified his intention of being present to address the boys as has also Senator Warren G. Harding, Gen. Edwin F. Glenn and possibly Congressman Julius Kahn, of California. The Mayors of all the cities in South Western Ohio will also be present with their soldier and sailor boys to celebrate the day.

A number of athletic events will also feature the day. Among these will be boxing and wrestling matches, a general field meet and one and possibly more baseball games. For the boxing bouts, which are arousing interest among the sporting fraternities, a number of Dayton artists of the squared ring have been signed, and it is possible that there may be several boxers from Xenia in the bouts as these men have been invited to don the gloves if they so wish. Among the boxers already engaged are R. Buford, who weighs in at 160; Earl Charnoy 135; Arthur Grant 118; Ed Taylor 190; Charles Bush 145; Ernest Moyer 142; Herman Nolta 170; Chas. Paul 195; Ed Towley 160; M. Dun, 160; 150; Herbert McCollough 195; Ed Grammer 137; Sam Strosser 120; Joseph P. Davis 158; Herbert Bloom 152 and Poland Ryan 140. These wrestlers have been engaged as follows: Gus Ackerman 125; Jack Flynn 125; and Charles Penneman 147.

The Middletown Post of the World War Veterans will play the Dayton Post a game of baseball before the picnic about 100 spectators from their town. Chairman Phillips is surrounded with a number of baseball uniforms and it is possible that other teams will be organized to play on that day. An effort will be made to organize a team from local veterans to represent Xenia against other Dayton, Springfield or Piquette. The latter city is sending a large delegation to the picnic and if information received by the head of the Dayton Post is correct, there will be ex-service men from all over the state present.

Mr. Somers, Physical Director of the Dayton V. M. C. A. and also a member of Edwin F. Glenn Post in that city will have charge of the field events on the picnic day and there will be a number of amusing field games, including sack races, running and jumping, swimming and diving and other features.

The "Buddy Band" a musical organization made up of men belonging to the Dayton Post, will furnish band concerts from one o'clock in the afternoon until ten at night and there will also be dancing all afternoon and evening.

Col. W. J. White, Governor of the Dayton Soldiers' Home, will be the Master of Ceremonies for the day and Governor White will also bring about 270 veterans of the present war, who are in the hospital at the Home, to the picnic. These men have all been wounded or gassed and are taking treatment at the hospital at the Home. They will have special accommodations to and from the park and will all be at the picnic. Other wars will not be without representation as about 1,000 veterans of the Civil and the Spanish American wars from the Home will also be on hand for the occasion. All of these Soldiers' Home men have been supplied with complimentary tickets.

The Park management has arranged to retain the refreshment privileges but Lieutenant Phillips hopes that the picnicers will make the affair a regular old-fashioned picnic and bring basket dinners. Cool refreshments will be on sale at the park.

Tickets for the big affair are being sold at the rate of $1 per person and can be secured here at the D. & X. traction office. It is hoped to make the affair the biggest of its kind ever held in this section of the state and as the World War Veterans have not fallen down on anything yet they feel that the picnic will be a success.

It is the object of the Dayton Post in arranging for this picnic, to give ex-service men all over the state the advantage of the big welcome home and good time and also to raise money to outfit the finest club rooms in Dayton and to put a champion football team in the field next fall.

Members and friends who are expecting to attend are urged to make arrangements to spend the day at the park, bring their dinners and be there at ten o'clock in time to hear Congressman S. D. Fess.

The colored soldiers of Dayton have formed Post No. 2 and will picnic at Tecumseh Park about August 8th.

REFRESHMENT MAN ATTACHES RECEIPTS OF JAMESTOWN MAN

Alleging that his stand was pushed into an obscure corner of the fair grounds where it was impossible for him to make any money, W. C. Allen, owner of a refreshment concession on the Jamestown fair grounds, brought an attachment suit for $450 against J. W. Tomlinson, owner of the fair grounds, Harry Hopkins, secretary of the fair board and the Jamestown Fair Association in common pleas court Wednesday morning.

For the purpose of attaching the fair gate receipts ex-Sheriff Funderburg and Deputy Sheriff Birch went to Jamestown Wednesday forenoon.

In order to prevent the operation of the fair being interfered with in any way, members of the fair board placed in the hands of the sheriff a check for $450 to cover the amount which Allen sought to attach, and announced that they intend to fight the matter in the courts.

Allen declares that after he was sold the concession, the fair association made a contract with a carnival company to sell them the entire concession privilege, and when the company arrived his stand was pushed out of the place he had selected.

THE PROFITEERING HOGS.

The food surplus of this and other countries has been called upon. The figures of experts show that the world's supply is sufficient to meet the demand, but the supply and the demand are so evenly balanced that there is no competition between the sellers such as would reduce prices. Producers and dealers seem to have no conscience that prevents them asking the last cent which the trade will stand and although there is no reason to justify if prices continue to advance.
To meet the higher living costs higher wages are demanded by the workers, their demands being enforced by strikes, and higher wages mean that still higher prices must be paid by purchasers, which will shortly require another advance in wages, and such running in a vicious circle cannot go on indefinitely.
Some of the leaders in England have begun to speak very plainly on the matter, seeing the logical result of this process. They have tabulated the prices received by the farmer for his produce and the additions to that price as the articles pass through the hands of jobbers and wholesalers and retailers until they reach the consumer, and the figures stir the revolutionary spirit in every one who reads them.
The very same thing is true of manufactured products. These English leaders are insisting that one of two things must occur. Either the people will become desperate and rebellious at the outrageous prices and storm and plunder the stores, as has been done in Italy or else the government must put a limit on the greed of producers and dealers and compel them to be satisfied with a reasonable profit.

Matters have not come to quite such a critical pass in this country, but no one can tell how soon that condition will be reached at the present rate of progress. Nothing that Congress could do would meet with such general approval as to make an honest effort to relieve the people of the burden of unreasonable prices which they are now compelled to pay.

James Jeffries, the prize fighter, who wrestled the championship from Fitzsimmons, recently, was one of the attractions at the Pan Handle depot, yesterday. He came in from Dayton and was on his way east. The big fellow attracted considerable attention, and was sized up from all sides.
The Rapid Transit Company commenced today to string its wires through the city. The wire is an extremely heavy one of copper, and the work of stringing it is progressing rapidly.
Mr. David Watt of near this city was the loser in yesterday's storm by having five of his fine Cotswold sheep struck by lightning and killed.
Mr. E. F. Canby of the Biddle gallery, who has been in New York for several weeks, is back at the gallery again.
Mrs. Henry Dunkle of North Gallows street has gone on a week's visit with relatives at Enon, and afterwards has a pleasant visit at Toronto, Can., in prospect.

West Point Cadets.
Each senatorial congressional district and territory, including Porto Rico, Alaska and Hawaii, is entitled to have two cadets at the West Point Military academy and the District of Columbia four cadets. There are also 80 appointments at large, especially conferred by the president. The law authorizes the president to appoint cadets to the military academy from among men in the regular army and National Guard, the total number not to exceed 180 at one time.

Show Volcanic Formation.
The whole of the west of Scotland and northeast Ireland are of volcanic formation. Look at the Giant Causeway, with its queer pipes of basalt, and the Isle of Skye, which is simply made of lava. Staffa consists of sheets of bedded basaltic lava, and the famous Fingall's cave is excavated from pure lava.

DOING BIG BUSINESS.

As the reports of the Peace Conference come to us there also rises the conviction that our representatives were in pretty big business while they were in Europe. They discovered two great empires that had been forced into political bankruptcy. That is a strange situation for governments to get into. They had made a great show before the world. They had paraded and boasted and made a large showing as a formidable people. Little did the wide world know of how near they were to dismemberment. Little was it known that they were hazarding their very existence on the victory of a world war. Their leaders had proclaimed, "World dominion or downfall!" and they were given the "fall."
Now they have gone into the hands of the receivers. They are classified as defunct and are speedily junked. Receivers for bankrupt empires, that is certainly big business.
But that is not all. Our representatives at the Peace Conference were creators of new nations. They used a new process, known only to biblical scholars, "that of fiat." They willed it, and new nations came into existence. That is an unusual way to bring nations into life. They have done that very thing. They have placed them on the map and given them boundaries, coasts, rivers, mountains, and geographical parts that guarantee the life and stability of a nation. They willed, and Poland came into a resurrected life. They spoke the word, and Hungary stood forth in independent existence. They but raised their hands, and the little nations of the Balkan region squared themselves about and formed into new nations. This function of creating new nations is surely big business of which any one should be proud.
Then they had the solemn pleasure of bringing to an end two royal families at least, and with the words of a democratic ritual buried them, saying to the house of Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns, "Ashes to ashes, and dust to dust." That, too, was big business.

SANDRA THE JEALOUS
BY JANE PHELPS.

EVERETT BUYS SANDRA JEWELS CHAPTER XXVII.
I met Everett at the modiste's and we selected a soft clinging stuff for my dinner gown. To my disgust Everett turned to the designer and said:
"Be sure you make Mrs. Graham's things very girlish and simple."
"What did you tell her that for?" I exploded the question as soon as we left the shop in such a way that Everett looked at me in a blank puzzled way.
"Tell her what?" He had already forgotten all about it evidently.
"To make my things girlish and simple! I don't want them made that way! everybody treats me like a child, and you make me look more like one by telling the dressmakers such things."
"You are acting and talking like one now—a very young one."
As usual his tone and manner prevented me from saying more, but it did not prevent me pouting.
"Better round up your face a little Sandra," he said when we stopped in front of a jewelry store. I had been so cross that I had paid no attention to what he had said to the chauffeur. "The salesman will think I have been spanking you," he smiled so queerly when he said it that I laughed, and so made up with him. Everett seldom joked, but when he did he was so comical I couldn't help laughing even if I felt cross.
I had wondered all the morning if I was to have Leola's sapphires. I soon found out that he had no such intention. He bought me a darling sapphire and diamond bracelet, and a wonderful sapphire pendant. They cost as much as father spent in a year for the entire family. But I had become accustomed to Everett's liberality by this time. At first I had thought of it as extravagance. Now I knew that brokers, even rich ones like Everett, often made quick turns in the stock market while I brought them in a great deal of money and which they spent as easily as it came.
I was delighted with my lovely sapphires. What girl wouldn't be? I really and always loved that shade of blue. It was simply my feeling that Leola had worn it that made me object to wearing it. So I thanked Everett and leaned over to kiss him. We were in my town car, so I thought it all right.
He drew back.
"Remember you are in the street, Sandra. Someone might see you who either did not know, or who did not recognize me, and would talk of your indiscretion. Save your caresses for the privacy of home."
I felt chilled, hurt. I had not heard that word "indiscretion" since he had told me of Leola being indiscreet. Now I wondered if wanting to kiss him had been what he meant. If he did no wonder she did things he didn't like—no wonder she drowned herself if he would not let her show her love for him. For the

TERRIBLE TESSIE

HENRY CLEWS GIVES VIEWS OF PROBLEMS FACED BY THE U.S.

New York, July 30.—There are not a few difficult problems ahead which tend to sober the excessive optimism developed since the war closed. Much attention is centered upon the labor movement, the demands for higher wages and shorter hours, the frequency of strikes and the outlook for the continuance of this movement. Capital is not unsympathetic with the desire of labor to improve its position, but appreciates the consequences of shortened production and what will happen when the upward movement is checked by exhausted buying power. Capital and labor alike are demanding higher wages to meet rising costs, and both are likely to demand still more as long as the public will pay, or until abundance takes the place of scarcity, which as a matter of fact is the only real cure. That, of course, means work, and more work.
The monetary outlook is also a source of decided perplexity. While banking resources have grown enormously, credit has also been greatly inflated, and the demand for money is growing fast in all directions. The amount of money in circulation July 1, was $5,841,000,000, compared with $5,385,000,000 a year ago, the circulation per capita now being $54.28, as against $50.86 at the same time last year. The total deposits of the national banks, according to the last available statement, were $15,903,000,000, an increase of $1,518,000,000 in 12 months, while loans and discounts increased in the same period $644,000,000. Taxation continues to draw enormous sums from productive activity, and there are no signs of relief from this burden, the government still being the influential factor in the money market. Next comes trade requirements, which owing to an extraordinarily profitable harvest will be exceedingly heavy during the approaching autumn and winter months. The larger volume of trade and the high level of values combined will put a much heavier load upon the banks than ever before.
Another financial problem of great importance is the granting of foreign credits, which are absolutely imperative for the continuance of our export trade. Government aid in this direction has been about exhausted, but local bankers are carefully devising plans for meeting this situation which will probably be shortly announced. Foreign exchange was strengthened considerably by hope that some stability would soon be established. The restoration of Europe and the future of our foreign trade must largely depend upon some such successful action, and it is fortunate that the problem is to be left to private initiative rather than to government enterprise. Finally, there are the requirements of home business, which are last, but not least. Home enterprise has been deferred for several years and there is a heavy accumulation of new ventures as demonstrated by the number of new capital issues. In the United States these amounted to $1,182,892,000, from January 1 to July 1, as against $689,422,000 at the same time last year. In Great Britain the new commitments reported were about $300,000,000, compared with $55,000,000 in 1917, for the first six months of the calendar year. Revival of home enterprise alone will require enormous sums of money, especially for the railroads, shipbuilding and structural works.

INTERESTING VISITOR EXPECTED IN XENIA

An interesting visitor who is expected in Xenia Thursday is Major J. S. Shaffer, M. C. of Montgomery, W. Va., a son of the Rev. J. F. Shaffer, who for a number of years was pastor of the Lutheran Church in this city. He is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. George Moore of East Main street, whom he will visit while here.
Major Shaffer recently returned from overseas. He offered his services in the medical corps at the beginning of the war, was sent to France and was almost continuously at the front until the time of the ending of hostilities. Mr. and Mrs. Moore are anticipating his visit with much pleasure.

The Sleeping Partner

By ALVAH JORDAN GARTH

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Everybody in Brocton was surprised when the will of Eben Darrow was read and Ellis Burton was named as a beneficiary to the extent of ten thousand dollars in cash and two buildings on the main business street of the town.

"Why, they were not very closely related," advanced our critic.

"Oh! old Darrow did it out of pity," declared a second. "You see, Burton was born lazy. He has never had to work, for he don't know how. The old man knew he would starve if he didn't leave him provided for."

When the friends of Ellis came around to congratulate him, they found him ensconced in his favorite arm chair, indulging in his afternoon nap, an invariable adjunct of his daily routine.

"It's my great luxury, a snooze," confessed Ellis frankly. "You see, for ten years I lived with my uncle in the far South, where, in summer time, nobody works between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. It's a hammock and a nap, except for the natives. I fell in with the sleeping habit."

For all his indolence Ellis was a great favorite all around. He revered all womankind, and had a way of petting the children that made him universally popular. Ellis was generous to a fault, never out of humor, and he did not even get excited when he was informed of his heirship.

One day a young man asked for him at his hotel. The proprietor of the hostelry indicated his pleasant-faced guest, asleep in a chair in the lobby.

"I don't like to disturb him," observed the newcomer.

"Oh, Burton wakes up as easily as he goes to sleep," said boniface. "Just give him a nudge. He'll take it friendly and natural." So the young man went over to the side of the comfortably disposed slumberer.

"Hello! What's up—a fire, or something like?" challenged Ellis.

"No, a little matter of business," came the explanation. "I am Arnold Wells, and I am looking for a business location. I understand that you own the little vacant store opposite here, and I would like to know its rental."

"Oh, that's it, eh?" said Ellis. "What's going to be your line, Mr. Wells?"

"Why, I have been running a small place down the line in automobile accessories. They have put the new paved highway through Brocton, so I am planning to move to where the prospects are best."

"Yes; but say, I also own the corner building. That's vacant, too. And there's a flat overhead. I suppose you have a family?"

"Only a sister."

Ellis manifested a growing interest in the clear-headed, intelligent young man, who explained that he had less than a thousand dollars to invest in the prospective enterprise. It all resulted in a suggestion from Ellis that his visitor expand his business proposition and take in the sale of automobiles, as well as accessories, he furnishing the capital. Ellis could sit around the place and talk to customers, making sure it was furnished with a comfortable easy chair. He need not forego his customary afternoon snooze, and if there was any outside work to do, what more pleasant than a cushioned seat in a luxuriously appointed car? So a bargain was cemented, the big store was fitted up, and the brother and sister established in modest living quarters.

Ellis was aroused to a new interest at the first sight of Edna Wells. Edna kept the books of the business, her brother put in full time working up business and the happy Ellis decided that he had fitted right into an ideal occupation, if his activities could be so considered.

Just as the business seemed on a settled basis Arnold broke down from overwork. His doctor insisted that he go away for two months' rest. Edna was to go with him as his nurse. The last evening they spent in Brocton she came to Ellis.

"Mr. Burton," she said, "you shall not lose, after all your generosity towards us, for if Arnold does not recover his health he will make over to you his share in the business. But I did hope," and her wistful, pleading eyes caused Ellis to thrill, "that you would—would wake up. Oh, forgive me! But if you would only take the interest in the business you are capable of, that would give poor Arnold new life and hope."

"You dear, sweet friend!" exclaimed Ellis, roused out of himself. "You've given me a grand motto: 'Wake up.' I'm going to do it."

All Brocton marveled just after that. One man noticed Ellis on the street at daylight and rubbed his eyes, and looked twice. From morning until night Ellis was moving briskly about town, working up business or out among the farmers selling them machines. When the hour for his accustomed nap arrived he would take a run around the block. He joined an athletic club. A springy step, a rare glow of health were now present with him. The supreme moment of his life came the day Edna and her brother returned to Brocton and proudly he vaunted the business progress he had made.

Add later came the reward of well doing—upon one eventful evening when he told Edna Wells that he loved her.

That was indeed a patriotic hen.

After the Years

By OTILLIA FRANCES PFEIFFER

(Copyright, 1919, by Western Newspaper Union.)

The kindly faced, gray-bearded old man occupying section seven in the Pullman sleeper gave a great start as a poignant cry echoed through the coach. He sought the source of the outburst and, at sight of the white, despairing face of a modestly attired young girl, advanced towards her.

Her hands were clasped and her eyes, aflighted, were fixed past the open car window. She sat now like one turned to stone by some vivid calamity. She had boarded the train at Denver, Marvin Hope had noted, and the conductor had just appeared at the other end of the car.

"You are troubled," he spoke instantly. "What is it, young lady?"

Elva Merrill turned her gaze upon the speaker and burst into tears. "Oh, sir!" she breathed, gaspingly. "My ticket! I was getting ready for the conductor and for only an instant placed it on the window sill. The wind took it and—oh! what shall I do?"

"Where were you going?" inquired Mr. Hope.

The reply named a point in Southern California, and added the further information that she had no money of consequence and had given up a position she had held in a town fifty miles from Denver. "What can I do?" she faltered. "The ticket is gone, I have no home, no friend nearer than my destination."

"We shall arrange that," spoke Marvin Hope. "Just try and be calm. I will speak to the conductor," and, moved by an impulse his generous nature could not resist, he went to the conductor, spoke to him for some minutes and then returned to the side of Elva. "It is all settled," he said, with a great deal of cheerfulness in his tone. "At the next station the conductor, by my desire, will secure a through ticket for you."

"But I cannot pay for it," remonstrated Elva.

"Not now, perhaps, but possibly later. Listen, young lady. I am bound for the same destination as yourself. You will tell me your story, and we shall try to discover some way to make you feel free to accept a temporary loan from a lonely old man who is glad to aid anybody in distress."

"Indeed, I can reimburse you!" declared Elva, fervently. "My friend at San Druro is a Mrs. Honoria Purcell. I was her companion two years ago, but she was very hard to get along with and I sought other employment. Last week she wrote to me offering a two years' contract and is seemingly anxious to have me accept. I am sure she will advance me sufficient to repay you."

"I am sure of that, too," replied Mr. Hope in his gentle, reassuring way. "For Mrs. Purcell is a wealthy woman whom I know quite well. And your name, young lady?"

"It is Elva Merrill," Marvin Hope gave a violent start. It was well that Elva had her gaze averted at that moment, else she would have been amazed, possibly alarmed, at the manifest emotion of her benefactor.

He seemed to experience difficulty in restraining an impulse to seize her hands, or fold her in his arms, pouring forth a wild torrent of words of gladness and joy crowding to his trembling lips. He recovered his self-possession as Elva exhibited the letter from Mrs. Purcell. He listened breathlessly to the story of her life; bereft of a mother, her only near relative, two years previous, and later trials attending the earning of her own living.

"Were there none other of near kin?" he asked. "No dear friends?" Elva shook her head sadly.

From that point until the end of the journey Marvin Hope exercised a fatherly care for the homeless girl, that every hour increased her confidence in him. When they reached San Druro his automobile and chauffeur were in evidence. When the machine stopped it was before a beautiful mansion set in the midst of an exquisite garden. Elva supposed this to be the residence of Mrs. Purcell.

"Home!" Marvin Hope announced, as they were met in the hall by a motherly housekeeper—"my home, and yours! My dear, I gave you a fictitious name, for a purpose. I am your uncle—your mother's brother, Marvin Hope—and I was just disappointedly returning from a vain search for you at your former home. I found no trace and you can imagine the sorrow of a lonely old man who awoke at last to a longing hunger for the company of his own flesh and blood. You will not go to Mrs. Purcell. You will remain here, my own adopted child, until you marry."

"I shall never marry," spoke Elva, and her fair face fell.

"What! Not even if Rodney Parton comes after you?"

"Rodney Parton?" breathed Elva. "You know of him?"

"My dear," replied Mr. Hope, "searching for you I found him also upon the same quest. You had left your old home, never dreaming how he loved you. Well, I telegraphed him en route that I had found you, and he is probably now speeding on his way to lay his heart at your feet. This shall be his home, as well as yours and mine."

And, her arms about the neck of this grand benefactor, Elva Merrill sobbed out the joy and gladness that was welling up within her happy soul.

TYPHOID FEVER CAUSES MANY DEATHS IN OHIO

Columbus, July 30.—If Ohio communities were as efficient as the city of Chicago in protecting the public health, a score of Ohioans whose lives were sacrificed in typhoid fever in June would be alive today.

The state department of health calls attention to Chicago's mortality report for June, showing not a single typhoid death, and compared Ohio's record with this. On the basis of incomplete reports of cases of typhoid in Ohio in June, it is estimated that 20 or 25 deaths occurred in the state in that month.

Chicago has achieved her low typhoid record by good sanitation, purification of the water supply and pasteurization of the milk supply, according to that city's health officials. Ohio health officials say that a similar record is possible for any Ohio community which chooses to devote the necessary effort to saving the lives of its citizens. Typhoid is considered to be one of the most readily preventable diseases.

Ohio physicians reported 463 cases of typhoid during the earlier half of the present year. The total, it is believed, is about 50 per cent complete, and indicates a death total of about 100. During the same months Chicago had seven deaths from typhoid, February and March, as well as June, having been without any such deaths.

Two British soldiers went into a restaurant at Salonic and asked for Turkey with Greece. The waiter said: "I'm sorry, but I can't Serbia." Whereupon the Tommies cried, "Fetch the Bosphorus!"

When that gentleman arrived and heard the complaint, the manager said: "Well, gentlemen, I don't want Russia, but you cannot Rumania."

And so the poor Tommies had to go away Hungary.

AUTO TIRE MEN ENJOY DINNER AT ELKS

Several local tire men were among the thirty guests of the Dayton branch of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, at a banquet given at the Elks Club Monday evening at 7:15 o'clock.

The men sat down to an excellent banquet arranged for by William Eyer, head of the Lodge dining service. The menu consisted of fruit cocktail, spring chicken and gravy, new potatoes, creamed peas, sliced tomatoes, ice cream and cake, iced tea, coffee and milk.

Following the banquet there were a number of speeches, all of them dealing with the tire industry, and a number of samples showing tire construction, were shown to the audience.

Among the local men present were M. H. Schmidt and J. B. Bice of the Xenia Garage Company and Wilbur Wike of the Kelly Ford Agency.

XENIA SEMINARY TO STAY AT XENIA

The commission appointed by the Board of Managers of the Xenia Theological Seminary met in Chicago on June 25. This commission is composed of two representatives from each of the five synods controlling the seminary, and one member of the faculty. All were present at the meeting, except one of the representatives of the Second Synod.

Those in attendance were: President J. A. Thompson, D. D., and Mr. J. F. Withrow, of the Synod of Iowa; Rev. Paul Calhoun and Mr. A. M. McClenahan, of the Synod of Nebraska; Rev. J. W. McClenahan and Mr. C. H. White, of the Synod of Illinois; Rev. J. H. Gibson, D. D., and Prof. O. S. Johnston, of the Synod of Kansas; Prof. J. E. Bradford, of the Second Synod; and Professor Joseph Kyle, of the seminary. Rev. J. W. Harsha, D. D., and Hugh Martin, Esq. of Chicago, were present for a part of the meeting, as interested visitors, and were gladly accorded a place in the conference.

The points of conference specified by the Board of Managers in the appointment of this commission are:

1. The location of the seminary.
2. The provision of an adequate building and grounds, in case a change of location is determined upon.
3. The increase of endowment, and enlargement of equipment in general, whether the seminary remain in Xenia or be transferred to another field.

The commission held two sessions, forenoon and afternoon, and went thoroughly into all questions arising in the case. When the discussions had been completed, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

1. It is the judgment of this commission that Xenia Seminary be maintained at her present location, unless some other place presents itself which offers adequate inducements in the way of equipment and endowment and enlarged usefulness on the part of the seminary to the kingdom.
2. That the chairman be authorized to appoint committees, representing the commission, to consider and investigate any field or fields that may present claims to the location of the seminary.

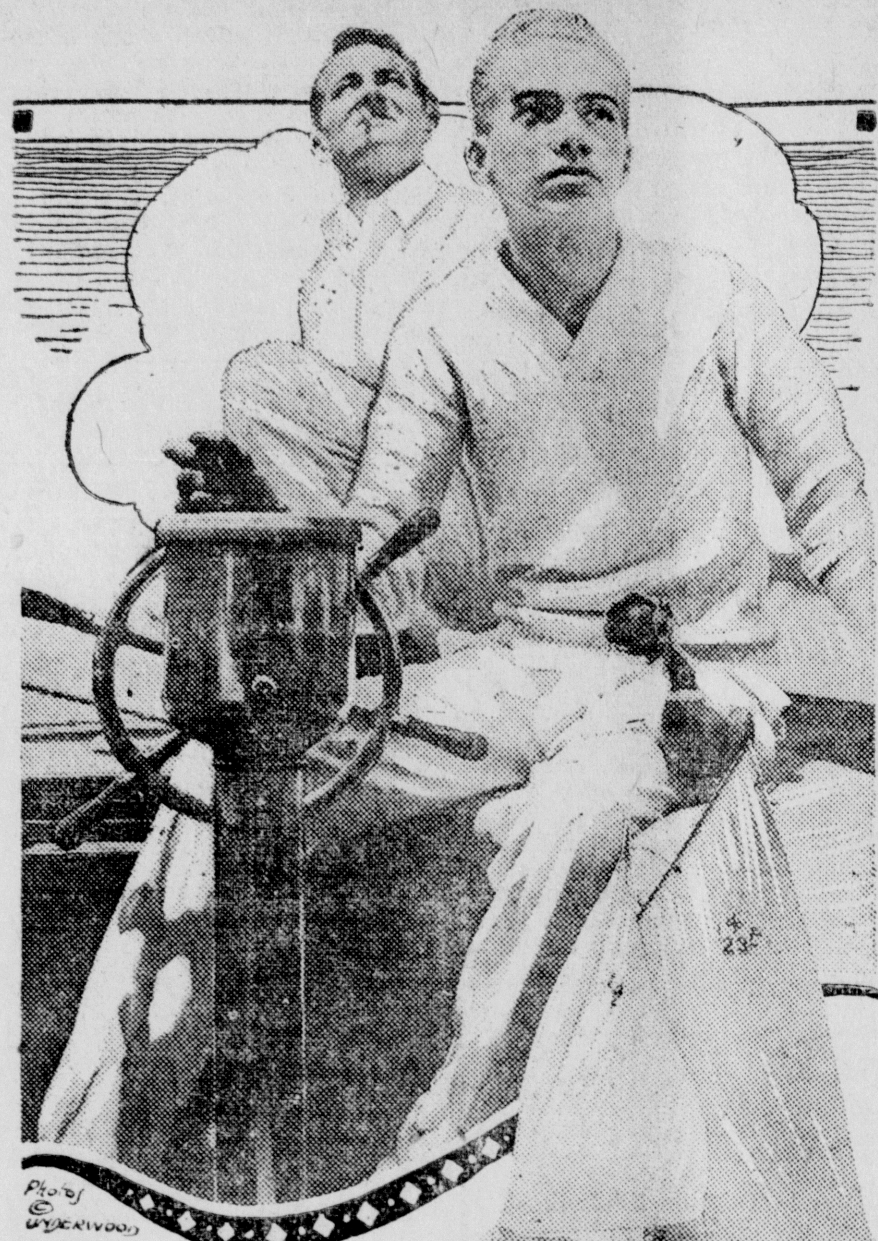

Although the question of the union of the two United Presbyterian seminaries was not referred to in the action of the board appointing the commission, a resolution was presented by one of the representatives of a western synod and unanimously adopted by the commission, that such union "under existing conditions is undesirable and impracticable."

The undivided sentiment of the commission was that the synods in control of the seminary should make special effort for the enlargement of the seminary in every respect, that the service rendered to the church may measurably meet the demands. The second resolution is meant to serve as a stimulus to all friends of the seminary, to show their faith by their works; not only those who believe that a location further west is desirable, but also those who favor the retention of the present location. Full and fair consideration will be given to the claims of the advocates of either view, but the claims must have a solid foundation of promise, not simply the uncertain support of opinion.

The imperative call for the enlargement of the church's missionary forces in the foreign fields and for the speedy increase of her ministry in the home land demands the awakening of interest in the seminary's work on the part of those who are entrusted with the responsibility of control, and the "New World Movement of the United Presbyterian Church" furnishes opportunity and impulse to those who would know the time for which they have come to the kingdom.

Meanwhile the Xenia Theological Seminary will keep her doors open at the old stand encouraged by the fact that there is good prospect of an increased attendance for the coming year.

Failure Always Has Its Price.

A London magistrate declares there is no such thing as a man having a right to take his own life. This dictum is no doubt morally sound, but all the same isn't there something queer about the law which punishes a man who tries to commit suicide and fails?—Vancouver Sun.

Bowling Green is New York city's oldest park, says Gas Logie. It was leased by the city council in 1732 to John Chambers, Peter Bayard and Peter Jay for a "bowling green," at an annual rental of one peppercorn a year. The original lease was for 11 years.

MYSTIC ALASKA

A Summer Play-Ground

*Inspiration Point,
White Pass and Yukon Route*

Country of the Red Midnight Sun, Bewitching Northern Lights, Strange Ice Rivers, Quaint Indian Villages and Curious Totem Poles.

HERE is a story that a boastful American once told an admirer of Vesuvius that he had right here at home in Niagara Falls, "a stream of fire that could soon put out those fires." All laughable stories aside, we have here at home stupendous scenery, wonderful mountain peaks, glistening glaciers, placid yet large waterways. It is expected that now war is over travel will greatly increase in this country and there are many persons who will visit Alaska.

Have you seen this strange land, newest of all our continent? Have you seen Alaska? Not the Alaska that it takes long weeks to travel over, but the Southeastern portion, along the Inside Passage, from which you can get a glimpse of the only frontier life in our great country today? Alaska for the summer traveler does not mean the Klondike or Nome. These are long trips for the traveler who wishes to spend many weeks in the interior or on the open sea. It means embarking on a steamer for a ten to twelve days voyage through a wonderland of islands and by rugged promontories and glaciers that run from the mountain to the sea.

Boat Trip
It is possible to take a boat at Seattle, Victoria or Vancouver. While the guiding landmarks are grand mountains, volcanic peaks and mammoth glaciers which sparkle in the sun, as the steamer steps at the principal towns and villages the tourist gets a glimpse of the character, habits and conditions of the people and of the Alaskan Indians, who engage in many occupations.

The country along Vancouver Island is storied territory, for it has played its part in the annals of the early voyagers of the Pacific. The real boundary of Alaska begins at Dixon's Entrance and shortly after the steamer stops at Ketchikan, one of the newest of the towns. It seems to cling to the hillside, but it has homes and an excellent reason for being, for copper and gold are found nearby and it is the headquarters of the halibut industry in this section. There is a boardwalk which follows a salmon stream and this and the totem poles form a sort of keynote to other Alaskan towns.

Totem Poles
Totem poles are not found in all Alaskan towns, but whenever seen they are of great interest to the passengers. Most of the Alaskan totem poles are carved on the sides and hold on the top the figure of an animal—the frog, toad, bear or whale being favorites because these with the raven are the chief representatives of the Indian families, and some traditions, their progenitors. They are a sort of insignia or crest. Most of the poles are from twenty to sixty feet high, and from two to five feet in diameter. The carving is on the front of the pole and in some of the totem poles placed among the Haida villages, where many of the best specimens are found, a doorway is cut through the trunk of the totem for egress and ingress. Some odd poles are surmounted by tall hats of the "Boston" man. In early days the white traders were called "Boston" men and the Indians took this way of showing the family's association with them. Many of the most interesting of Alaska's totems are over the graves of shamans. As these chiefs or medicine men are buried above ground the large wooden animals on top of the boxes are carefully carved and wonderfully painted.

Though the totem poles of Ketchikan are of interest some of a higher order are found at Wrangell, the old Hudson Bay Trading Post, at which the boat stops later on. Hunters from all parts of the world assemble periodically at this place and the tourist can sometimes pick up rare skins at this little village of about eight hundred souls. The totems at Wrangell belong principally to the Thlinket race and the carving as a rule extend to the top of the pole. One totem is distinctive because surmounted by the image of a beaver. The whale totem is noted up and down the Pacific Coast. It is many feet high, covered with moss and lichen and a great black whale is perched on top. Chief Katishau has two elaborately carved totems painted in dull reds, blues and black before his somewhat modern residence, and Chief Snake takes pride in a tall pole with a frog on top, the sides of the pole being carved with the imprint of human feet ascending and descending. Some of the dwellings in Wrangell have two totem poles in front, one representing the male side and the other the female side of the house. In addition to its quaint totem poles, Wrangell has some curiously marked graves, one being surmounted by the huge carving of a wolf.

Sitka Has Beautiful Harbor
Sitka is another place where there are opportunities at times to obtain rare skins, but the many charms of this old Russian-American town make the purchase of trophies sink into insignificance. This interesting old town seems set in a coronet with towering mountains in the background. It is protected by a bay from the turmoil of the ocean and the water is dotted with hundreds of rocky and pine-clad islands. The whole forms a harbor of so much beauty that it has been likened to the Sea of Japan and the Bay of Naples. The town is a peaceful, straggling sort of place, with a few hundred houses and an interesting raucous or Indian village in which live several hundred descendants of the tribe that once caused Baranoff so much trouble.

Long before the boat stops at Sitka, one can see the rocky eminence on which Baranoff raised his castle, and near the wharf are some ancient moss-covered Russian buildings. Just outside of the town is the spot, marked with some of the best totem poles in Alaska, which Ex-President Taft caused to be set aside as a National Monument to commemorate the Russian victory over the Indians.

Skaguay
Skaguay at the head of Lynn Canal, is a town that in the early days of the gold rush seemed to spring into life in a single day, it has wonderful mountains behind it and from it starts the White Horse and Yukon Railway which leads to White Horse on the Yukon River. On the usual Inside Passage trip one either spends the day in Skaguay or takes the train on this road and goes to the International Boundary and back the same day. This trip affords a sublime spectacle of titanic mountains, with white summits and green sides that seem hurled in confusion from the sea. From the car windows can be seen the old White Horse trail over which prospectors struggled with packs on their backs in their mad rush for the gold fields. This gateway to the Yukon, as Skaguay is called, has curious shops and some good gardens and is reminiscent of "Soapy Smith" and other ruthless men, though today it is peaceful and an interesting commercial center.

So, like the shifting pictures of a panorama, the scene constantly changes as the boat winds in and out of wide or narrow channels, and sometimes into tortuous courses as at Wrangell Narrows, which look like a narrow canyon filled with water and bordered by wonderful blue mountains and snow encrusted peaks. Always there is an open way before and many, many miles behind. The waters often have an opalescent hue, and as it does not grow dark until well on toward dusk, there are many hours of daylight in which to enjoy the ever-changing scenes. Sometimes porpoises leap into the air and whales have been known to disport themselves not far from the shore.

Salmon Canning
The salmon canneries always interest the sightseer, and when the steamer stops at Petersburg or some other large cannery, time is given to watch the process. One sees the thousands of fish lying on the wharf, the slicing, canning, boiling and finished product. There is a cannery at Metlakatla which is of interest because the town, with its neat houses, church built by the Indians, school and saw mill, is governed by a council of natives aided by William Duncan, the founder. Many years ago this Englishman came to British Columbia as a missionary. He studied the Indian language, lived among them, taught them and established an Indian town called Metlakatla.

Many icebergs will be seen, and the glaciers fill world-travelers with wonder. There is an iridescent effect in Alaskan glaciers that is not seen on other American glaciers. Frequently there are opportunities to stop at Davidson and Taku glaciers and if the sea is calm it sometimes happens that one gets a glimpse of Muir Bay, filled with ice floes from the great Muir Glacier.

It is an interesting voyage—this to Southeastern Alaska, but after all the towns are not the greatest attraction. One may view with curiosity the totem poles, may ramble over quaint villages of Russian memories, may take a trip on a railroad above the clouds, may purchase miniature totem poles and curios, but what lingers longest in the memory are snowy mountain heights, transcendent cloud effects and the glorious Aurora Borealis.

THEATERS

BIJOU.
William Farnum, fighting Fox star, has a splendid Western vehicle in "The Lone Star Ranger." Zane Grey's dramatic story, which will appear at the Bijou Theater Thursday.

The story in book form is one of the Grey's best sellers and it has gained rather than lost its attraction in transmission to the screen. The supporting cast is an excellent one including Louise Lovely, G. Raymond Nye, Charles Clay, Lamar Johnstone, Frederick Herzog and Irene Rich.

ORPHIUM.
"The Amazing Wife" is an amazing story with an amazing plot and requiring amazing acting, which will appear at the Orphium Theater Thursday.

The production is by Universal and features pretty Mary MacLaren, in a role that calls for intense emotional acting, which she displays with the ease of the artist. Supporting her in the cast are Frank Mayo, Ethel Lynne, Stanhope Wheatcroft and Seymour Zeiff.

Question Before the House.
"I wonder," said the discontented bachelor, "what one is going to do when one buys woolen wear guaranteed not to shrink, and patronizes a laundry that guarantees not to shrink the unshrinkables, and then finds the unshrinkable laundry shrinks the unshrinkable garments?" — London Sketch.

HARRY SPENCER IS HELD BLAMELESS FOR MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

Harry Spencer, driver of the automobile with which a motorcycle collided last Thursday night on the Jamestown pike, causing the death of Leon W. Fries, was held blameless for the accident by Coroner R. L. Haines who rendered his verdict regarding the tragedy following an inquest which was conducted Wednesday forenoon.

Dr. Haines said that the evidence disclosed that the motorcycle was being driven at a terrific rate of speed when the accident occurred, that there was plenty of room for the machine to pass around the rear of the automobile, and that the boy driver evidently lost his head. The coroner heard the evidence of six people.

The accident occurred when the motorcycle driven by Frank Lamme of Bellbrook, who had Leon Fries as a passenger, collided with the Spencer car, as the automobile was making a turn at the Kendall road. When the motorcycle struck the automobile, the big car was knocked eighteen feet, and the Fries lad was thrown from the motorcycle and crushed between the bumpers of the automobile and a pole at the side of the road. The boy driver of the motorcycle had put on more power in order to drive around the automobile, just before the larger machine made the turn.

DOES THIS SURPRISE YOU?

The Monotype Company of Philadelphia, has just received from the Government Press of the Mysore State at Bangalore, India, a book of 218 pages, 8 1/2 x 12 inches printed in good English from Roman type set and cast on the Monotype.

It is still more surprising that it was entirely set on the Monotype by native operators working under native supervision.

And the wonder grows when we find 118 pages of rule and figure work. The book is well printed and illustrated with a number of halftones.

The title is "Progress of Education in the Mysore State," and the book is itself convincing evidence of that progress.

Dogs of War.
On July 28, 1838, General Zachary Taylor, afterward president of the United States, requested the government to furnish him with bloodhounds to be used in hunting the Seminole Indians of Florida. He was furnished with the dogs.

FRACTURED SKULL CAUSES DEATH OF BABY THOMPSON

Baby Charles Thompson, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Harry A. Thompson, died from a fractured skull due to an accident caused by the collapse of a wheel on the automobile of his uncle, William Lowe, which caused the machine to overturn. Mrs. Thompson received a broken collarbone. These further details of the accident in which the grandson of Judge and Mrs. Charles H. Kyle lost his life near Shenandoah, Iowa, while he was enroute with his parents and others from Tarkio, Mo., to Atlantic, Iowa. Monday morning were contained in a telegram which was received Wednesday by Judge Kyle. Other members of the party were unhurt. The telegram said that a defective steering apparatus caused the accident.

The baby's body will be brought to Xenia for burial, Rev. and Mrs. Thompson and some of their relatives leaving Atlantic with the little body Wednesday night. They expect to reach here Thursday night, and general services for the baby will be held at the Kyle home on West Third street at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.
